THE BRAVE LITTLE STAR AND THE LOST MOON

Once upon a time, in the bright night sky, there was a tiny star named Sparky. Sparky was the smallest star in the whole sky, but he had the biggest heart. Every night, he twinkled with joy and smiled at the children who looked up at him. One night, Sparky noticed something very strange. The Moon was missing!

"Oh no! Where did the Moon go?" Sparky worried. Without the Moon, the night felt too dark and quiet. Animals hid in fear and children could not sleep peacefully. Sparky gathered courage and said,

"I may be small, but I will find the Moon and bring the light back!"

Sparky zoomed across the sky, passing clouds and dancing with the fireflies. Soon he heard a soft, sad sound.

"Who is crying?" Sparky asked kindly.

From behind a huge cloud, the Moon appeared. His light was dim, and he looked very sad.

"I am lost," said the Moon. "A big storm pushed me away from my place in the sky. Now I don't know how to go back." Sparky felt a warm glow in his heart. He gently said,

"You are not alone. I will help you return. Everyone needs your light."

The Moon smiled a little. Sparky held the Moon's hand and tried to pull him up, but Sparky was too small. He did not give up! He called his friends: the twinkling stars, the happy planets, and even the sleepest comet.

"Let's help the Moon together!" Sparky said with courage.

All the stars joined hands and made a long, shiny star-ladder. The planets pushed with all their strength. The comet zoomed fast and sparkled bright to show the way.

"One, two, three... PUSH!" they shouted.

With a great whoosh of magic, the Moon rose up, back to his beautiful place in the night sky! The sky shone brighter than ever before.

All the animals came out, happy again. Children smiled in their dreams. And the Moon beamed proudly.

"Thank you, Sparky," said the Moon. "You are the bravest star I know. You saved the night!"

Sparky's light glowed brighter and brighter.

"It wasn't just me," Sparky said. "We all helped together. That is the real magic!"

The Moon winked. "From now on, every night I will shine a little brighter just for you."

And Sparky twinkled happily beside his friend, knowing that courage, kindness, and teamwork can light up even the darkest night. Every night after that, when children looked up at the sky, they saw Sparky shining the brightest, reminding them:

No one is too small to be a hero.

DISCIPLINE

Discipline is waking up early,
Even when my bed feels warm,
It's doing homework on time,
And trying to follow the norm.

It means listening to my parents,
Though I don't like it much,
It's keeping my room kind of clean,
Not perfect, just as such.

Discipline is finishing my work,
Before I go out to play,
It's choosing what is right,
Even at the end of the day.

Sometimes it feels really hard,
And I want to give up instead,
But discipline helps me grow,
That's what my teacher and parents said.
